Player, Exile signed for Homecoming

By CATHERINE HANCOCK

Player and Exile have been signed for Western's Homecoming concert Nov. 3.

David Carwell, Associated Student Government activities vice president, said Sunshine Promotions, Western's concert booking agent, signed a contract with the two groups Friday.

Carwell said he thought Player would be the lead act, although Exile's "Kiss You all Over," has recently been No. 1 on Billboard magazine's music-ranking chart. Exile is a group based in Richmond.

Player's "Baby Come Back" was also recently on Billboard's top-40 chart.

According to Carwell, neither band was on the list of about 25 acts the ASG concert committee recommended to Sunshine.

Carwell said tickets for the concert will be $6 in advance and $7 the day of the show. He said he doesn't yet know the time of the concert or places where tickets will be sold.

"Some people will be upset with Sunshine because they don't consider Player and Exile 'big names,'" Carwell said.

Carwell said people should wait before forming an opinion of Sunshine because most schools in the country schedule concerts between mid-October and mid-November, and the most popular acts can choose where they want to perform.

"As far as major concerts go, the impact we (Western) have is very limited," Carwell said.

Carwell said he would rather not name the acts on the concert committee's list, because "that list was only a guideline to the type of concert names we were looking for."

According to Carwell, Sunshine books acts it thinks will be profitable. Western can suggest certain groups it thinks will be popular and profitable, but it cannot actually pick the band. "We have to play this game by Sunshine's rules," Carwell said.

The concert is certain to be profitable for Western, Carwell said, because Sunshine pays all the bills incurred in putting on the concert. Western will get 13 percent of the after-tax gross.

"If they only sell one ticket to it, we make money," Carwell said.

8 students seek post on panel

By ALAN JUDD

Eight students will compete Thursday for the student position on the presidential screening committee.

A primary election from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Center Theater will reduce the field of candidates to two, according to Steve Thornton, Associated Student Government president.

The general election will be Monday.

Candidates for the position are Jo Nell Bennett, a Henderson junior; Tim Callis, an Owensboro senior; David Carwell, a Bowling Green senior; Rockford Halleron, a Bowling Green senior; Daryl Hancock, a Hopkinsville senior; Victor Jackson, a Clarksville, Tenn., senior; Joan Provost, an Evansville, Ind., senior; and Bobby Schabel, a Louisville senior.

All part-time and full-time students are eligible to vote, Thornton said. Students must bring their identification cards to vote.

Regent says governor could get job

By ALAN JUDD

Gov. Julian Carroll said Thursday that he doesn't want to become Western's president, despite rumors that he might want the job when his term expires in December 1979.

One member of the Board of Regents said last week that Carroll probably could get the job if he expressed a desire for it.

Besides speculation that the governor might replace Dero

Downing at Western, there are rumors that Carroll might have Murray State President Constantine Curris moved to Western. Carroll would then assume the Murray presidency himself.

Another rumor is that Carroll will go to Murray, Curris will become executive director of the state Council on Higher Education and Harry Snyder, who is now the council's director, will become president at Western.

Carroll denied those rumors while on campus Thursday night for a speech to a school administrators' banquet.

"I have no interest at all in any presidency of any university anywhere," he said after the speech. "And that's not out of a lack of respect for this fine institution."

Despite that, Faculty Regent William Buckman said Carroll would be a strong contender for the job.

"If he had the desire to be president of Western, quite obviously he would be a very, very, very strong contender," Buckman said.

He said being governor, having a law degree and years of experience in government, would make Carroll a strong candidate for the presidency of any state school.

"Plus, he has appointed the members to the governing board

Close quarters: Greeks share apartments, dorm rooms

By CONNIE HOLMAN

For Greeks who don't have houses because of financial or zoning problems, sharing apartments or living on the same dormitory floor is an alternative.

Gilbert Hall traditionally is known as a sorority dorm. Chi Omega members live on the second floor, Alpha Omicron Pi on the third and Alpha Delta Pi on the fourth. Phi Mu members have recently moved to the sixth floor of McCormack Hall.

Some sororities require their members to live in a certain dorm at least one semester but smaller sororities seldom do, Kathy Watson, student affairs staff assistant for sorority affairs, said.

AOPi Vice President Kit Huey said her sorority has shared a dorm floor for at least eight years.

time to have another election if we have problems with it or a dispute," Thornton said.

The deadline for selection of the screening committee is Monday.

Meanwhile, faculty members are voting today and tomorrow in a runoff election for their two representatives to the screening committee.

Four candidates are still competing for the two positions according to Linda Pulsinelli, chairman of the Faculty Senate's elections and by-laws committee.

Competing in the runoff are Dr. Eugene Evans, business administration; Dr. Douglas Humphrey, physics and astronomy; Tom Jones, English; and Dr. Carl Kreisler, educational leadership.

Voting will be from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. today and tomorrow in the college deans' offices.

"If we don't have two winners, we will have to have a second runoff Thursday and Friday," Mrs. Pulsinelli said. Two of the candidates must receive a majority of the votes.

The administrative council representative on the screening committee will be Harry Largen, business affairs vice president. Largen defeated Charles Keown, student affairs dean, in an election last week.

Five administrators are competing on a third ballot for the position to represent college deans and department heads.

They are Dr. Kenneth Brenner, associate College of Education dean; Dr. Leonard Brown, acting associate Ogden College dean; Dr. Stephen House, registrar; Dr. Robert Mounce, Potter College dean; and Dr. Robert Nelson, business and public affairs college dean.

Ballots are due in the academic affairs office at noon today.

Second of two stories

"We do have an apartment for rush parties and meetings," Huey said. Files, equipment, trophies and rush materials are also stored there.

"When you live in a house you're sort of isolated," Huey said. "This way you're around independents and you get to meet more people."

She said sharing a dorm with two other sororities hasn't been difficult. "It's never gotten in the way when we were competing," Huey said. "We get along real well and try to promote good sportsmanship. There's never been a problem."

She said the members can develop and maintain a close sisterhood by sharing a dorm floor. "That's the main idea of a sorority, and now we have more time together," Huey said. "We're always in and out of each others' rooms."

ADPi President Mary Leslie McCormick said sharing a dorm floor is convenient. "It's a good way to know what's going on," she said. "We're always putting up announcements on the bulletin boards, and we have our meetings in the kitchen."

She said disadvantages to dorm living include being unable to have rush parties or meals together.

Phi Mu President Mickey Wheeler said a sorority works more efficiently when the sisters live down the hall from one another.

But there are some snags, she said.

"Sometimes we tend to all pile in one room and talk," she said.

"So you have to get away to study. You visit the library more often."

"When an announcement needs to be made, we put up a sign or holler down the hall," she said. "It's also easier to assemble for practices and meetings."

"Living together has really helped us," Wheeler said. "We do a lot more things together and it's a lot of fun."

Pi Kappa Phi President Glen

Floyd said his fraternity had a house last year but had to leave it when the bills were higher than the fraternity expected.

Now the members share apartments or live in dorms, he said. "It's hard to communicate without a central meeting place, and we don't see each other as often."

"But now we are a little bit closer because we have to make an effort to see each other."

(the Board of Regents). There are several factors that would make him a viable candidate if he were interested," Buckman said.

Carroll has either appointed or reappointed all the regents, except the student and faculty regents, who are elected.

In addition, at least three regents have strong political ties to Carroll through the Democratic party.

Board Chairman J. David Cole, a Bowling Green attorney, is the party's patronage contact for Warren County. Ronald Sheffer, a Henderson attorney, is the contact for Henderson County and William Kuegel of Owensboro is the contact for Daviess County. All were appointed by Carroll.

Buckman said he has heard several rumors that Carroll might like to become a university president, but none of the rumors have been from official sources.

"I've heard a lot of rumors, but not reliable information from individuals who should know that his (Carroll's) intentions would be," he said.

Another regent, Tom Emberton, an Edmonton attorney, said he has heard the rumors, but there has been no contact between Carroll and the regents.

"The only thing I know about that is what I've read in the papers," Emberton said. "All the regents on the board will vote for the candidate that they feel meets the qualifications, regardless of who he is."

Five-piece band captivates sellout crowd at Van Meter

By DAVID WHITAKER

John Prine's band Friday night did what no contemporary band had done in recent years—it played before a sellout crowd at Van Meter Auditorium.

Ron Beck, assistant student affairs dean and Associated Student Government adviser, said that even though the tickets were more expensive than those for any mini-concert he could remember, selling them was no problem.

"That's the first sellout we've had since I've been here," Beck said. He's been associated with Western 8½ years.

Prine's band was paid $3,500, but other costs totaled $2,500, Beck said. He estimated gate receipts at $4,000.

Prine's five-man band mixed humorous country rockers with heart-rending, hard-hitting numbers that would make Bob Dylan envious. Playing adequate rhythm acoustic and electric guitars and singing lead, Prine led the band through 25 songs, each one getting a bigger ovation than the last. They gave an appreciative crowd almost one hour and 45 minutes of music.

With his spraddle-legged, country boy style, Prine displayed charm and warmth that captivated the crowd of more than 1,000.

The band didn't have to rely on Prine's personality all the time, though.

Review

Versatile Howard Levy, who played keyboards, mandolin, steel drum, harmonica and penny whistle, weaved melodic solos with the band's structured sound. Lead guitarist John Burns provided frantic, distorted licks and at times, well-phrased, lengthy leads.

Drummer Angie Varas and bassist Tom Piekarakis were hardly noticeable, but they served their purpose, providing a solid foundation.

A scenic backdrop was the only extravagant visual effect as Prine started off with "Spanish Pipedream," one of his many humorous songs.

The next song, a basic country rocker, would have been the low point of the concert if it weren't for Levy's dazzling harmonica, the best a Western audience has heard since War's Lee Oskar played in Diddle Arena.

One of the more familiar songs, "Illegal Smile," turned into a sing along as Prine's band left the stage and Prine accompanied himself with acoustic guitar.

"You may see me tonight with an illegal smile. It don't cost very much, but it lasts a long while," he sang.

Apparently the song is about

John Burns sings with John Prine in Van Meter.

marijuana: "Ah, but fortunately, I have the key to escape reality."

"Sabu Visits the Twin Cities Alone," a nonsensical song about an elephant coming to the big city, was strange, even for Prine. One line was especially memorable: "The airlines lost the elephant's trunk."

Before "The Bottomless Lake," Prine told the story behind the song.

"I call it 'The Bottomless Lake' because I couldn't find enough things to rhyme with river," he said.

The song is about a family that went for a Sunday drive and was never seen again. They took a road that led to a lake and didn't stop the car in time.

Nobody could find the car when the lake was dragged. "They had to put something on the police report, so they said it was a bottomless river," Prine said.

Few people could make a song about a drowning funny, but the lyrics are so absurd they couldn't possibly be taken seriously.

"For heaven sake, we fell in the lake and I think we're all gonna drown," Prine sang. As the family sat in the car while it sank, the father "said he woulda taken the other road, but he didn't think the lake was that deep."

Prine said if the lake were bottomless, "they must be sinking as we're singing."

The band joined Prine after he sang "Dear Abby" to the crowd's delight.

Prine can be as serious as he can be silly and happy.

"Sam Stone," a song about a drug addict and his family, sent a hush over the audience.

"There's a hole in daddy's arm, where all the money goes," he sang. "Jesus Christ died for nothing, I suppose. Little pitchers have big ears; don't stop to count the years. Sad songs don't last too long on broken radios."

Rhonda Lynn Jarboe, a Louisville sophomore, met Prine, her second cousin, after the concert.

She said she told him, "I know you don't know me, but I'm your cousin." She said later, "He was so nice. It was neat."

Parking crunch not unique

By TIM FISH

Two other state universities have a tighter parking situation than Western.

Northern Kentucky University has the worst parking problem, according to a Herald survey, with 1.98 cars with permits for each space on campus.

About 1.8 cars per space are registered at the University of Louisville, putting it second on the list.

The survey was made last week. Spokesmen for Kentucky State University at Frankfort were unavailable for comment.

Western is third on the list, with 1.48 cars with stickers for every parking space.

Northern, a commuter university, has 1,901 student parking spaces and 367 faculty spaces—a total of 2,268. About 4,500 permits were distributed, according to a Northern official.

U of L has about 5,000 parking spaces with 8,500 to 9,000 permits distributed as of Jan. 1 1978, according to Daniel Keller, public safety director at U of L.

"If your ratio of parking is 2 to 1 or less, you're in reasonably good shape," Keller said. Not all of the about 9,000 cars with parking permits are on campus at one time, he said, so the number of permits can't be limited to the number of spaces, he said.

Western has 4,683 parking spaces and has issued 6,960 decals.

The University of Kentucky was fourth, with about 1.27 cars with permits for every permitted parking space on the main campus. UK has 2,960 student permit parking spaces and 4,240 faculty spaces, according to Tom Padgett, public safety director.

UK has a football stadium parking lot with about 5,300 spaces which need no permits, so its total campus ratio is .73 parking spaces for every car.

Murray State University was fifth with about 1.25 cars with permits for every parking space.

"Our parking situation is horrible, primarily around the dorm complexes," Joe Green, Murray security director, said. There is more than ample parking, but it's not all close to campus, he said.

Morehead State University was sixth with about 1.05 cars with decals for every parking space.

There are about 3,129 decals issued with 2,981 parking spaces on campus, Buford Crager, Morehead student affairs vice president, said.

According to George Duncan, public safety assistant director at Eastern Kentucky University in Richmond, Eastern has around 6,000 parking spaces and has distributed almost that many permits, which would appear to make it the university surveyed with the best parking situation.

Many of the universities were in the process of gathering the information, so the figures quoted are estimates.

Meeting in Danville

Council to discuss campus construction

By ALAN JUDD

The state Council on Higher Education will meet tomorrow at Centre College in Danville to discuss procedures for allocating capital construction funds and approving construction projects.

According to Roger Crittenden, council executive assistant, the council will discuss construction projects it considered at a summer meeting and will examine construction requests received since the last meeting.

Crittenden said allocation of $10 million for capital construction probably won't be made tomorrow because the council is waiting to see whether the federal government will provide matching funds for making repairs to meet federal standards.

The council voted earlier this year to use the $10 million for compliance with state and federal laws, such as the Handicapped Act and Occupational Safety and Health Administration safety regulations.

Also on the meeting's agenda is a proposal to change the procedure for having campus construction projects approved.

"The way it is now, the council has to approve everything over $100,000," Crittenden said. "What we're going to do is let the (council) staff approve $100,000 projects and anything over $250,000 goes to the whole council."

"All these roof repairs and everything are running like $150,000 and have to be done anyway, without waiting for the council," he said. "It would be basically for routine repairs."

The council also will adopt guidelines for selecting the institutions in surrounding states that are used to make salary and tuition-rate comparisons with Kentucky schools.

The meeting tomorrow will be a joint session with the state education council and the Council of Independent Kentucky Colleges and Universities.

Asian media programs reviewed

Professor tests scholarly skill

By CONNIE HOLMAN

A consulting assignment from the National Endowment for the Humanities allowed Dr. Donald Tuck to exercise his academic training and evaluate a media program focused on Asian life.

A professor in the philosophy and religion department, Tuck teaches Asian religion and culture. He was named a consultant last year, and reviewing this program was his first project.

The lengthy proposal he evaluated in late September involves 26 television programs that would document the Asian lifestyle. "The objective is to broaden the American perspective and deepen our understanding of the cultures of Asia," Tuck said Thursday.

The idea materialized two years ago with public television station KQED in San Francisco, Tuck said. A directory of Asian scholars in the Bay area was put together. Dozens of those scholars as well as media representatives have worked together to outline the $413,000 program.

"There are six sets of four programs with an introduction and a conclusion," Tuck said. "They are designed to get Americans over the hatreds of the war years when terms such as Japs were used."

The programs deal with life stages in Asian cultures, focusing on childhood, growing up, maturity, aging and death.

"What really impresses me is the review in this program," Tuck said. "When the work is done, scholars will be there to go out in the field, clip and put it together. They'll also see it so mistakes can be corrected and they can make sure the Asian perspective is there."

Weekends as well as weekday afternoons were spent reading and reacting to the proposal, Tuck said. "I kept checking so much material and looking up things."

The professor said the consulting work was a personal honor and might also benefit the university. "The next time an application from Western goes in, they'll know we're a part of the academic community," he said with a smile.

"This has been good for the academic mind and for me," Tuck said. "I don't know how much it helps my teaching, but it helps me communicate ideas, and if a teacher can't do that he's in trouble."

Few rooms still empty

Several dorm rooms have only one occupant, but there are few empty rooms on campus, according to Horace Shrader, housing director.

The rooms with one occupant resulted from students not showing up or dropping out, Shrader said.

Though it would be more economical if students living alone in double-occupancy rooms were moved in together, there are no immediate plans to do so, Shrader said.

Residents already living in a room by themselves may keep it by paying an extra fee.

CEB repairs may be delayed

By STEVE CARPENTER

Work on the main section of the College of Education Building roof is nearly complete, but the contractors, Geoghegan Roofing and Supply Inc., may work on another project before re-roofing the wings of the building.

The company will also put a new roof on Keen Hall this year, according to Kemble Johnson, assistant physical plant administrator.

Johnson said Western hopes to have the two occupied sections of Keen Hall repaired before bad weather sets in.

The main section of CEB was the one most heavily damaged and work there is nearly complete.

A decision will be made later this week on whether to move the contractors to Keen Hall before completing the CEB roof.

Johnson said he thought the building had leaked since it was built in 1968, and the roof was damaged in a 1969 hailstorm.

The repair of the CEB roof is costing more than $200,000, and the new Keen Hall roofing will cost $47,487.

The Keen Hall roof was also damaged during the 1969 hailstorm and the lobby roof was replaced then.

The lobby roof will be replaced again.

Most of the university employees who work in CEB say at times the smell and noise caused by the repair are bad.

Some classes had to be moved, and garbage cans were used to catch leaking rainwater in some rooms.

Some of the cement also came loose in the building. One building service attendant said the attendants worked in pairs one night because they feared some of the cement might fall.

There also have been toadstools growing in the carpeting in the fourth floor learning resource area, Jackie Smith, building service attendant, said.

Chi O house fate undecided

By STEVE CARPENTER

Warren Circuit Judge William Allender Friday overruled a motion to dismiss an appeal of the rezoning of a proposed Chi Omega sorority house, ruling that the appeal was filed within the 30-day time limit.

Allender ruled that the 30 days began Aug. 22 after the City Commission gave its final approval to the zoning change.

Allender will give a final ruling to the appeal after he receives the attorneys' answers to the ruling and a transcript of the City-County Planning and Zoning Commission's meeting.

The appeal, filed by Dr. Ron Adams, educational research director at Western on behalf of the residents of the area, states that City-County zoning commission acted arbitrarily in approving the rezoning, according to Stephen Catron, attorney for the commission and the city of Bowling Green.

Catron and David Broderick, attorney for Chi Omega and the Chi Omega Housing Corp., filed motions to dismiss the case on the grounds that the Sept. 13 appeal was filed more than 30 days after the Aug. 3 meeting of the planning and zoning commission.

Keith Carwell, attorney for the residents, told Allender that since the planning and zoning commission can only make recommendations and cannot change the zoning, the 30 days should not begin until after the City Commission's Aug. 22 meeting.

A bargain

$95 spent to match students, employers

By MARGARET MacDONALD

Only $95 in university funds paid for about 400 man hours of programming experience for seven senior computer science majors who developed the GRAD II student-employer matching service last spring.

The university seems to have gotten a bargain.

The computerized matching service began early in 1978 with the purchase of a $95 package from the College Placement Service. A computer science class took the package (a reel of tape containing 25 programs needed for the service) and made it work. They received three hours credit.

Dr. John Crenshaw, associate computer science professor, said "They (the students) all agreed it was the most time-consuming three hours." Crenshaw supervised the project.

"We got an old version (of the programs) without any documentation," Crenshaw said. "We had to take that and try to get it running." The pilot running of the program last spring proved to be a success. About 2,400 students were matched with 153 prospective employers.

This semester, in the first run since the pilot, about 350 Western students and alumni are being matched with 300 prospective employers.

According to Bob Somers, career adviser, the service can "facilitate students getting a job in their career field choice."

Students within two semesters of graduating and Western alumni are eligible to participate in the program. Student information forms, obtained at the career planning center in Schneider Hall, include the student's career choice, job location preference and other information.

The deadline for filing student information forms for this December's printout has been moved to Nov. 17, Somers said. The earlier filing date will allow more time to get the printouts mailed before the Christmas holiday.

The employers also fill out information sheets that tell what majors they are interested in hiring, how many openings they will have at a specified time and general recruiting information.

Three times a week, Somers conducts 15-minute sessions to instruct students in writing resumes, cover letters and filling out the GRAD II information forms. A schedule of class times is posted in the reception area of the career planning office.

Since accuracy on the forms leads to a better match, Somers said, it is required that students attend one of the sessions. Then, Somers said, questions about filling out the forms can be answered. "It's to the student's interest to do it that way."

After the forms reach the career planning center, Somers has them coded and placed on computer cards. The cards are then taken to the computer terminals and read into a computer at the University of Kentucky.

The computer runs the programs and sends printouts of the matching data to Western. Somers said he receives printouts for his use as well as for the students and the employers.

The computer printout the student receives includes names of firms, a contact name within the firms, firm addresses and telephone numbers so that the student may set up an interview.

If the prospective employer does not have a time for interviews scheduled at Western, the student should send the firm a personal resume with a cover letter, he said.

Students whose name and information sheet are on the GRAD II files continue to receive printouts until a year later or until they request to be removed from the file.

According to Somers, the cost of the GRAD II program is "minimal." The only program costs are for printing the computer printout material, buying postage for it and the computer time used, Somers said.

One drawback, according to both Somers and Crenshaw, is the exclusion of how accurate the matches between students and employers are on the printouts the students receive. For example, the students may match the employer on their field choice but may differ on the job location preferred, Somers said.

Carey tells tales of Western movies

By STEVE ESTOK

Harry Carey Jr. walked onto the stage wearing pointed-toe boots and a cowboy hat and told the audience, "I just thought I'd tell you some tall tales."

That's how the veteran began stories of his life as a Western movie actor.

Carey, an actor for 32 years, presented his one-man show in Van Meter Auditorium Thursday night to what he termed a "small but enthusiastic" group of about 45. Carey's lecture was a part of the University Center Board lecture series.

Group pictures being taken

Group pictures for the 1979 Talisman are being made from 6:30 to 10 p.m. today through Thursday. Any club that wishes to be included should contact the Talisman in the university center, room 124, or call 745-2654.

Only those organizations officially recognized by the university can have pictures made.

For the record . . .

Four arrests and a truck theft were among recent campus incidents, according to university police reports.

Campus police arrested Bobby Cecil Phillips Jr., 21, Route 5, Franklin, on the sidewalk in front of McCormack Hall early Sunday on a charge of driving while intoxicated. He was released from Warren County Jail on $127.50 bond.

Campus police arrested an Edinboro senior, Larry Wayne Harrison, 22, 1500 Parkside Drive, at Smith Stadium Saturday afternoon on a charge of being drunk in a public place. While at the Bowling Green police station, city police charged him with terroristic threatening relating to comments made to police officers. He was released from the Warren County Jail on $100 bond.

Campus police arrested James Edward Siddons, 72, 1223 Chestnut St., Thursday night on Regents Avenue on a charge of driving while intoxicated. He was lodged at Bowling Green-Warren County Hospital on the advice of his doctor.

Campus police arrested Donald Wayne Vaughn, 19, 2314 Pearce-Ford Tower, on Elmhursten freshman, on a charge of possession of marijuana. Police said they found marijuana in Vaughn's dorm room Tuesday and arrested him at the public safety offices Wednesday. He was released from Warren County Jail on $150 unsecured bond.

Franky Leon Butler, an Albany freshman, reported that his 1978 Ford Bronco truck worth $7,600 was taken from the Pearce-Ford parking lot Wednesday or Thursday. The truck, owned by his father, is red with racing stripes and white mag wheels, he told police.

Thomas Neal Hepler, a Reed freshman, reported that a wheel cover worth $50 was taken Tuesday or Wednesday from his car parked in the Pearce-Ford lot.

Mildred Ann Killian, an Owensboro junior, reported that a combination tape player and radio and three tapes, together worth $200, were taken Friday or Saturday from her locked car, parked in the parking structure.

Walter Ernest Bradshaw, a Glasgow freshman, reported that a side-view mirror of his car parked in the Bemis Lawrence lot Saturday was kicked loose. The cost of the damage was unknown.

Vincent Craig Duncan, a Clinton junior, reported that a tape player worth $71 was taken from his locked car, parked in the University Boulevard lot Friday afternoon.

Thomas Nelson Wampler II, a Louisville sophomore, reported that tubcaps worth $180 were taken from his car parked in the University Boulevard lot between Sunday and Thursday.

Brooks Alexander Agnew, a Latrobe junior, reported that his briefcase, calculator, textbooks and notebooks worth $189.34 were taken from an unlocked locker in the Smith Stadium spring sports locker room Tuesday.

Mary Jane Thompson, a Tunkhannock freshman, reported that her bicycle, chain and lock worth $147 were taken from the front porch of Rader-Hart Hall between Tuesday and Thursday.

Takumbo Shakur Sika, a Logan, Nigeria, freshman reported that $280 in cash was taken from an unlocked locker in the Diddle Arena men's locker room Sept. 26.

Rader-Hart Hall was evacuated Sunday afternoon, after smoke was discovered there. Bowling Green firefighters could not find fire. The source of smoke was determined to be popcorn that caught fire in the second-floor kitchen.

Film clips and still photographs were projected onto a screen behind Carey as he told anecdotes about directors, actors and stunt people.

Talk about John Wayne was a focal point of Carey's show. "I don't think there'll ever be another Wayne," he said. "He is the last of the great Western stars."

Carey appeared with Wayne in several films, including a 1948 remake of "The Three Godfathers," in which Carey had his first major role. He talked of how his father, Harry Carey Sr., and the film's director, John Ford, worked with Wayne.

Carey also talked about Ford. Ford was a very demanding man to work for who always wanted the best from his actors, Carey said. "If I didn't pay attention, he would kick me in the pants. He was tough."

In an interview after the show, Carey said, "I've always been identified with Western pictures. I'm trying to break loose from that."

Carey said he is doing the tour to keep busy, and that he enjoys an audience.

Carey also said that Westerns move in cycles. "People follow the leader and they go in trends." A big director will make a great Western and the trend will go toward Westerns again, he said.

The best thing about old Westerns, Carey said, is that "they all brought action and escapism into our lives."

Ground game 'zips' Akron past Tops

By BRYAN ARMSTRONG

football

Through four games this season, Western's newly installed 5-2 defense had held its ground against a variety of option offenses, allowing less than 175 yards a game on the ground.

But in Saturday's 26-21 loss to Akron at Smith Stadium, the tables were turned. There wasn't anything fancy about it. The Zips just lined up and crammed the ball down the Hilltoppers' throats.

"We used everything but a blackjack and a shotgun to stop them, and we still couldn't," Topper coach Jimmy Feix said.

Akron—gained 292 yards rushing, most of it coming on runs up the middle. The Zip offensive linemen, who average 237 pounds, overpowered Western's linemen, who average 214 pounds a man.

Adding to Akron's size advantage, 220-pound fullback Dan Simon pounded the middle of the Topper line for 86 yards. The Zips' three slippery tailbacks—Paul Winters, Redell Windley and Terry Cameron—combined for 195 yards behind Simon's blocking.

"We knew they'd run and we should have been able to stop them," Topper linebacker Carl Estelle said. "We practiced all week on everything they did."

"They just kept coming at us."

"That's our kind of football,"

Akron coach Jim Dennison said.

"We're a powerful ball team."

Western, tied for 10th in the National Collegiate Athletic Association Division IAA poll before the game, now has a 3-2 record. Akron, sixth in the same rankings, is 4-1.

Even with Akron's dominance of the line of scrimmage, the outcome might have been different if a couple of plays had gone Western's way.

The first came late in the first quarter during the Zips' second drive. After letting Akron move from its own 20-yard-line to the Western 22, the Topper defense stiffened, and the Zips missed a 39-yard field goal attempt.

But Western was caught with 12 players on the field, and the resulting penalty put the ball on Western's 11. Two off-tackle runs later, Akron led, 7-0.

The second happened almost three quarters later, with Akron on top, 26-21. On third down from Western's 27-yard-line, Topper quarterback John Hall lofted a wobbly but on-target pass to wideout Darryl Drake at the Zip 15. The ball bounced off Drake's outstretched hands, and Western never again got close to the Zip goal.

"I just couldn't get to it," Drake said. "I just got my fingertips on it. It's hard to say, but I think I could have caught it."

"That's a hard play to make—you're running hard and your eyes are juggling around in your head," Topper coach Jimmy Feix said. "Darryl did a great job beating his man, and we came as close as you can."

Like Akron, Western had little trouble moving the ball. The Toppers gained 168 yards on the ground and 206 in the air and had 19 first downs to Akron's 21.

Tops belie ratings, beat ranked teams

By DON WHITE

men's cross country

"We aren't ranked; we're not good enough," coach Del Hessel said with an air of sarcasm. "But that's fine with me. They can rewrite the polls."

Hessel's comments came after his team, which wasn't among the nation's top 20 cross country teams in a national magazine's poll, beat three of the country's top-ranked teams in the Indiana Invitational Saturday.

Western placed five runners in the top 15 adjusted positions (runners competing for teams, not individually) to beat Indiana, East Tennessee and Murray, which were in Harrier Magazine's top 20 teams.

East Tennessee was ranked ninth, Murray 14th and Indiana 16th before the prestigious meet in Bloomington.

"It was probably the best performance of the year for us,"

Hessel said. "We just outran them with our strength."

"We showed them we're for real. We were very, very impressive. All the coaches were impressed—including coach Hessel."

Freshman John Graham, who was running his first collegiate race, was fourth (third adjusted) to pace Western with a 30:47 over the 10,000-meter course.

"Of course, I was pleased with John," Hessel said, "but I don't believe John showed the strength he can have. He's still basically a track runner. The hills took a lot out of him."

Western's other adjusted

The top three finishers in the Indiana Invitational cross country race Saturday were (from left) Dave Murphy, John Graham and Tony Staynings. Staynings, a former Western runner, beat Murphy, who will be eligible to run for Western in January, by a fraction of a second.

Big boost: Hundred Club pays high recruiting costs

The writer has covered Western sports for 2½ years. This story, the first in a series, contains his observations and opinions.

By DON WHITE

It's the same for the vegetable salesman and the college coach. The days of the home-grown product are virtually gone.

In the era of the set shot and the single wing, championships were built around the local and state players with hearts devoted first to State U, honesty and forthrightness.

Grandmothers and next-door neighbors crammed the bleachers, yelling for their heroes by their first names and remembering when they first began tossing balls around in the back yard.

Western's 1970-71 basketball team, which finished third in nation, was among the last of the major college teams to win big with local boys. All five starters were from Kentucky and four were from with a 45-mile radius of Bowling Green.

With the emergence of athletic conferences, the explosion in the number of intercollegiate teams, the rise in the number of athletic scholarships and improved travel conditions, the home-grown player became an endangered species.

Enter the out-of-state star and the big outside money.

The Hilltopper Hundred Club, Western's athletic booster organization, spawned in the midst of the national rush to create foundations that would raise large sums of money to finance the recruiting of college athletes.

On July 22, 1965, when about 125 persons met at the Bowling Green Country Club for a banquet to organize a booster club at Western, Ed Diddle was retired and his charismatic personality that attracted first-rate players was missed. As a state institution, Western couldn't use state funds to recruit.

Athletic director Ted Hornback sought another source. After conferring with other colleges and studying their recommendations for six months, he thought he had the answer.

He had Western president Kelly

Thompson, local banker Top Orendorf, Daily News sports editor Bert Borrone and local businessman E.O. Pearson talk on behalf of the creation of the Hundred Club.

Hornback placed packets containing information about the club, tax exemptions and Western athletics beside the plates containing steak, a baked potato, vegetables and cake. The idea worked.

"After the dinner, Jim (Feix, then an assistant football coach) and I went back to my house and saw we had $3,000 in checks and a lot of applications for membership," Hornback remembered. "We knew we were on our way."

Since then, the club has grown into an organization with about 460 members and a budget of about $95,000—an increase of almost $70,000 from the 1977-78 income.

Leslie 8-1 at No. 1 for Tops

By BETH TAYLOR

Freshman Sandy Leslie might easily be winning beauty pageants instead of tennis tournaments. The 5-foot-7, blue-eyed blonde not only scores in looks, but also turns a few heads while playing the No. 1 seed on Western's women's tennis team.

She bubbles with enthusiasm when talking about tennis. And that enthusiasm has carried over onto the Hilltopper tennis court.

Leslie went undefeated during the round-robin tryouts in August to earn the No. 1 seed for the Tops. She breezed to a 8-0 singles' record before losing to North Carolina's Sandy Fleishman Sept. 30.

But she's not discouraged. "I think the loss will make me more determined to win," Leslie said. "It helped me discover my weak points."

She said that her serve is the most erratic part of her game. She also doesn't charge the net very often. Her strength lies in her persistent backhand shots.

In doubles, she and Kathy Ferry have played to a 7-2 record as Western's No. 2 team.

"I love working with her," Ferry said. "She's always so up mentally. Whenever we're down she's always saying, 'that's okay, we can do it.'"

Coach Betty Langley is pleased with the Joliet, Ill., product. "She's a very determined young lady," Miss Langley said. "She gives all she has in every match she goes into."

Leslie is not looking very far into the future, sometimes not even to her next match.

Sandy Leslie, the Tops' No. 1 seed, is 8-1.

"I don't even think about a match the night before," she said. "Then when I get on the court I concentrate on every shot—trying not to even lose a point."

Leslie is ranked 89th nationally in girls' 17-18 year-old division by a national tennis committee.

She had a 41-0 season and placed sixth in the Illinois state high school championship last year.

During the summers, Leslie plays in as many tournaments she can afford. "I'd like to play in more national tournaments," she said. "But they are really expensive."

Two summers ago, she placed seventh of 132 qualifiers in the Western closed tournament. Last summer, she was a member of the Northern Illinois Wightman Cup team that placed seventh in a 15-team round-robin tournament at Central Michigan.

She said athletic ability runs in her family. Her father was an All-American guard-forward at Notre Dame. He was voted the Most Valuable Player in a game against the Harlem Globetrotters.

Her brother plays semi-pro basketball in Sydney, Australia, and her sister has replaced her as the No. 1 seed on her high school tennis team.

Her father manages the Oakwood Limited Country Club, where she started playing. During the winter she played at the Joliet Indoor Tennis Club under the supervision of its pro, Manuel Prado.

"I worked there and got free court time," she said. "It was really a good deal."

son headed Western's attack. Hall, who has led the Ohio Valley Conference in passing all season, completed 12 of 29 passes for one touchdown. However, he was three for 18 during Western's last four possessions.

Stevenson had 77 yards on six carries, much of that coming on a 61-yard burst to the Akron one early in the game. Stevenson spun away from two Zip tacklers at the line of scrimmage and sprinted down the sideline before being caught by safety Rick Holman. Tailback Jimmy Woods dove over the goal line on the next play for Western's first score.

Woods twisted an ankle soon after that and missed the rest of the game. Feix said he didn't know if the senior will be ready for this Saturday's game at Tennessee Tech.

Western's other touchdowns came on a 25-yard screen pass from Hall to wideout Eddie Preston and on a seven-yard run by freshman tailback Barry Skaggs, who scored twice the week before against East Tennessee.

Western's Marvin Davis missed two field goal attempts and had a third blocked by Akron's Marvin Barney.

Akron's touchdowns were six- and one-yard runs by Simon, a two-yard run by Windley and a 36-yard pass from Bob Maxwell to Cameron. The Zips missed two extra points, one on a kick and the other on an incomplete pass.

After Simon's second score early in the fourth quarter put the visitors ahead 26-21, Western drove to the Zip 27. Hall missed on a third-down pass to tight end Kirby Bennett, and Davis' fourth-down field goal try was wide.

Western got the ball four more times, but the Toppers failed in drives starting from their 27, 17, 14 and 35.

"We moved the ball awfully well for three quarters," Feix said, "but the last series or two, we got excited. We lost a little calmness."

members seating and parking privileges at football and basketball games for $750, was created this year and the response has been tremendous. Of the $750, $250 goes to pay for four tickets for football and basketball games and the rest goes into the club treasury.

The Red Towel Club, a part of the Hundred Club, had 127 members as of late last week. Jim Richards, coordinator of men's athletics, said. It is the major reason why many Western coaches believe the future of Western athletics could be a lot brighter.

A $100 donation is required for membership in the Hundred Club, which has no employed personnel and is governed by a 12-member board of directors chaired by athletic director Johnny Oldham.

A $25 donation originally was required for membership.

The majority of the club's members are Western alumni living in Bowling Green. About 80 corporations and business firms are members.

Board members serve three-year terms and two new members are appointed each year on the recommendation of a nominations committee appointed by Oldham.

Hornback, president emeritus of the club; Richards, secretary-treasurer of the club; Chuck Whitt, president of the W Club; and Oldham are automatic members of the board because of their positions.

The other members of the board are Bowling Green businessmen Bill Peques, Charles Henry, Jim Scott, Gil Cowles and Gary West; Dr. Robert Goodwin; Norman Kuhn of Louisville; and Ron Shrewsbury of Franklin.

A major responsibility of the board, which meets bi-monthly, is to determine allocations to the Western teams that compete for the Ohio Valley Conference All-Sports championship.

The board recently changed its allocations to place a greater emphasis on the major sports—football and basketball—after they had had several weak seasons.

Previously, football and basketball both received 25 percent of the club's total income for recruiting and general promotional activities approved by the club and coaches. Basketball now receives 35 percent and football gets 30 percent.

Baseball and track now receive 5 percent each—down 5 percent from their previous allocations. Golf and tennis were allocated 5 percent of the income, but now get 2½ percent each.

Twenty percent of the outlays go to the club's operational expenses (monthly luncheons, speakers, plaques and mailing costs).

The National Collegiate Athletic Association says that booster club money can go for about all athletic expenses approved by the club, participating university and conference involved.

Consequently, the Hundred Club has allowed basketball coach Gene Keady to use about $7,000 of his allocation, to buy the air-conditioning system for Diddle Hall, the basketball dorm, Oldham said.

The Hundred Club funds are handled through the university's business affairs office. Persons requesting Hundred Club money for recruiting expenses must submit a requisition to the business office containing the signatures of a coach and either the president or secretary-treasurer of the club.

scorers were Tim Brooks, ninth (30:57); Jim Groves, 10th (31:07); Dave Long, 13th (31:16); and Ron Becht, 15th (31:21).

"The key to the race was our good team effort," Hessel said. "But I sincerely believe we haven't reached our peak yet. We have a lot of improvements to make the next couple of weeks."

Western's No. 5 runner, Mike Clay, made the trip but didn't run because he woke up Saturday with the flu, Hessel said.

Western won with 49 points, 24 better than the Mason-Dixon Track Club Team No. 2.

Kentucky was third with 96 points, followed by East Tennessee, 97; Indiana, 116; Murray, 128; and Eastern, 132.

The remaining 10 teams had more than 265 points.

Former Hilltopper Tony Staying, who ran for the Mason-Dixon Track Club Team No. 2, won with a 30:31.

Tops win Evansville tourney

Another team coached by Jim Richards is winning. But this time, it's in golf instead of basketball.

The men's golf team won the seven-team University of Evansville Invitational Friday and Saturday. Junior Tom Urtz shot rounds of 74 and 76 for the individual title.

It was Western's first win in two years. The last was in the eight-team Campbellsville Invitational in 1976.

Mike Naton tied for second with rounds of 75 and 77 but lost in a playoff to Indiana State-Evansville's John Kaposta.

men's golf

The Hilltoppers were a stroke behind Southern Illinois-Edwardsville after shooting a 312 Friday. But a 310 Saturday left the Tops with a one-stroke victory over SIU-Edwardsville. Southern Illinois-Carbondale was third with a 628.

Sean Madon and Jim Bagnardi contributed rounds of 81 and 82, respectively, Friday. The scores that counted the second day were Urtz's 76, Naton's and Ken Perry's 77s and Bagnardi's 80.

The Tops beat teams that whipped them earlier this semester. The Edwardsville and Carbondale teams beat the Toppers by 20 and seven strokes Sept. 14-15 at Indiana State.

Western also entered a second team. David Dalton shot rounds of 77 and 81 to finish ninth and lead the team to fifth place.

Tod Swiler had rounds of 81-81, James McCord shot 85-82 and Scott Collins had 83-86.

The Tops are playing in the Opryland USA Invitational today.

Western 10th in fall finale at IU

The women's golf team finished 10th in the 22-team Indiana Invitational last weekend in Bloomington.

Consistent rounds of 335 the first day and 330 the second helped the Hilltoppers slip past Central Michigan by one stroke. Western was two shots behind ninth-place Cincinnati.

"I'm not disappointed with their (the team's) play in the tournament," assistant coach Gina Owens said. "They played as well as they have been playing."

Freshman Susan Mercke led the team in the first round with an 80. Beth Taylor and Janet Bolle had 84s and Cindy Peshka shot 87.

women's golf

In the second round, Melissa Lesson led with a 79 followed by Peshka at 83 and Taylor and Bolle at 84.

Ms. Owens said the course layout and the weather affected the team's play. The course had tree-lined fairways and sandtraps and the weather was cold and cloudy both days, Ms. Owens said.

Ohio State, which shot a second-round 297, finished at 601, 19 strokes ahead of second-place Indiana.

The tournament was the team's last this semester.

"I feel the team has done a good job this fall. They all played equally well and by spring we should be improved," Ms. Owens said.

Four meets are scheduled for the spring semester.

Shooters win 1st match

The riflery team won its first match of the season last weekend by outshooting Middle Tennessee, 2,195-2,129.

Junior Mary Koeckert led all shooters with a 564 out of 600 possible points. Joyce Laubeneimer shot a 553, followed by Eric Sack at 559 and Kim Sage at 519.

"Mary (Koeckert) is a 560s shooter. This is the first time this year she shot in the 560s and we're hoping she can stay around this range," coach Sgt. John Baker said.

Middle's Tummonns Rifle Range is the site of the team's first league tournament Oct. 21-22. Six of the 10 teams in the All-American Intercollegiate Rifle League will be at Murfreesboro.

$2.3 million allocated for year's utility expenses

By STEVE CARPENTER

More than $2.3 million has been budgeted for utility bills for this fiscal year, Harry Largen, business affairs vice president said.

About half the amount budgeted, $1.16 million, has been allocated for electricity bills. Last fiscal year, the university used more than 48 million kilowatts.

Though the university used 10 million fewer kilowatts last year than in the 1973-74 fiscal year, electricity costs have increased $429,934, the sharpest rise of any utility.

The next-largest increase is for coal. Western will use between 6,000 and 9,000 tons of coal this winter to heat campus buildings, Owen Lawson, physical plant administrator, said.

Phone bills have increased almost $150,000 from four years ago. More than $558,000 has been allocated for phone bills, of which 43 percent is for dormitory phones.

Natural gas and fuel oil costs are up $53,980 from the 1973-74 fiscal year. Water and sewer costs are up $57,257.

The winter of 1976-77 was the first time use of natural gas was partially curtailed. That winter, the spending for coal went up more than $100,000.

Last winter, Western, which couldn't burn coal for most of the winter, used fuel oil. The fuel oil bill went up more than $130,000, and the coal bill went down $85,000.

This winter the amount budgeted for fuel oil is down about $140,000, while the amount to be spent on coal triples last winter's amount.
